

10. The Design Medium for Metal

When Shape and Design Complement Each Other

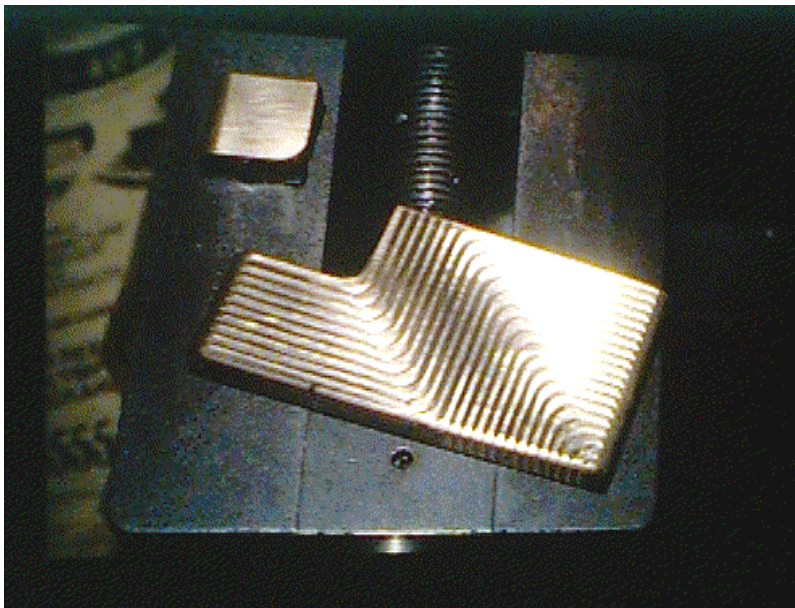

If the design of the product is integrated with the design of the engine turning the results will be a more unified product. This 18ct gold lighter is an example that also shows just how far you can go with the "technical drawing on metal" analogy to create exactly whatever you like!

After careful marking out the pattern is carefully constructed on straight line and circular machines

The sharper corners are carried over with a file This is an all over pattern

The button was also cut to match Getting all the joins between the straight lines and arcs to be invisible was quite an art
